

ROBBERS

At Work Plundering and Burning Property in Morgan County.

PLATT WILL BE SENATOR AGAIN.

Rumored Law Partnership of Cleveland and Carlisle.

DESERTION OF SEAMEN IN BROOKLYN.

West Liberty, Nov. 12.—A band of robbers has been operating in Morgan county this week and several thousands of dollars worth of valuables and money have been stolen. Although there is no direct clue, yet the sheriff thinks he will soon be able to locate the robbers. A posse is at work on the case.

The Governor's Daughter Ill. Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 12.—Gov. and Mrs. Bradley were yesterday called to Cincinnati on a summons by telegram that their daughter, Miss Christine, was dangerously ill at the Conservatory of Music at Cincinnati.

Robbed and Burned. Hopkinsville, Nov. 12.—The tavern and storehouse at Peebles were destroyed by fire yesterday morning at an early hour.

Both were robbed by incendiaries. The loss will amount to several thousands of dollars. No insurance.

That Extra Session. Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 12.—As to the date of the extra session, it can be safely stated now on good authority that the call will be for Tuesday, December 1. All this talk about the governor waiting till he shall have been decided upon for senator is mere bosh. Bradley already has the lead for the Republican nomination.

Burned to Death. Pikeville, Ky., Nov. 12.—Alexander Foams, an old man 50 years of age, met a horrible death yesterday. He has been an invalid for many years, and yesterday while attempting to walk around his room he fell and his head struck the grate. He was stunned and before he was discovered he had been so horribly burned that his death soon followed.

Seamen Acting Strangely. Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The seamen are deserting the battle ships in the navy yard here and no cause for their unusual conduct is known. It is thought that the recent rumors of a Spanish-American war may be the cause, for in that case the war would be a naval one. The work of repairing the ships here is being rushed as fast as possible and the navy yard is a bustling place.

Tom Platt to the Front. New York, Nov. 12.—Ex-Senator C. Platt has decided, so it is said, to accept the United States senatorship from this state. The legislature just elected is overwhelmingly Republican, and Platt's friends are in a large majority. If he wants to be a senator he certainly will get the nomination. Platt has been in private life since his resignation from United States senate in 1881, though he is the real leader of the party in this state.

Arrested in St. Louis. Louisville, Ky., Nov. 12.—A man, said to be Percy Sullivan, a prominent insurance adjuster of this city, has been arrested in St. Louis. Sullivan denies the charge and says that it is certainly a case of mistaken identity. The accused is a prominent citizen of this city and very well known. His friends refuse to believe that he is guilty.

Legislative Contests. Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 12.—The seats of each of the recently elected Republican Representatives and Senators have been contested by the Blackburn people. Notices have been filed, and while they have no power in the House to even prevent the seating of their own men they have given such notices.

The Senate, without the aid of the House, has elected a committee to investigate the charges against the Democrats, they are powerless.

For the First Time. Lexington, Ky., Nov. 12.—The Lexington board of aldermen, for the first time in the history of the city, has a Republican majority. The next meeting will be the first since the election, and there is much speculation as to who will be elected president to succeed Capt. B. W. Treacy.

Free Turnpikes in Franklin. Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 12.—At a secret session of the county court held here last evening, the court said to have voted in favor of freeing all the turnpikes, and at an early date will meet to levy the taxes necessary to accomplish this end. The intention by one of the members of the court is that a tax levy of twenty-five cents will be necessary the first year, while not less than ten cents will be necessary each year thereafter.

Returns from the State. Frankfort, Nov. 12.—All but three counties have sent in to the secretary their official returns from the election. The indications show that so far as tabulated at Kasi, the first Republican elector has received considerably more votes than any silver Democratic elector. Even were Smith (the first of the silver Democratic electors) elected, there could be no claim on which the Bryan Kentucky electors could have a hope. It is going to take a few votes behind the hindmost Republican elector, so there will be fifteen McKinley electors from Kentucky after all. The secretary of state and his assistants who are not giving out any figures, did not care to express an opinion.

Store Robbed and Burned. Mt. Olive, Ky., Nov. 12.—The office of the "Western Tribune" of this town, and 7200's store were robbed and burned last night. There is no clue to the robbers. It is supposed that many valuable articles were stolen and that the fire was to cover up any trace that might lead to the discovery of the perpetrators. The office of the "Tribune" was over the store. The loss is six thousand dollars.

Cleveland and Carlisle Atty's-At-Law. Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—It seems now to be definitely settled that President Cleveland and his brilliant Secretary of the Treasury John G. Carlisle will practice law together after March. Carlisle is one of the ablest lawyers in the United States, while Cleveland is a much better lawyer than is generally supposed. [Their office would of course be in New York City where Cleveland resided after his first administration. Cleveland and Carlisle are very warm personal friends and this legal partnership is a fitting succession to their political life.

TOM WATSON'S LETTER. Will Be Published in His Paper Today—Is Six Thousand Words Long.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 12.—The famous letter of acceptance of Tom Watson will appear in his paper today. It is six thousand words long and is thoroughly characteristic of the man.

STARVING.

Are The Bands of People in the Bombay Districts.

London, Nov. 11.—A special dispatch from Bombay says that in eleven districts of the Deccan and Coconia millions and a quarter of people are believed to be on the verge of starvation.

The dispatch adds that riots have occurred at Shahabad and Kazo.

BEGINNING AGAIN.

Mr. Bryan to Speak at Lincoln Saturday on a New Subject, "Bimetallism."

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 12.—Saturday afternoon Mr. Bryan will deliver two lectures at the Funks opera house in this city. These are supposed to be his opening guns in the four years' campaign for "bimetallism" which Mr. Bryan has promised to inaugurate. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the first address will be delivered to the Mary Bryan Club. At 8 p. m. the second will be given. This will be given under the auspices of the Traveling Men's Bryan Club and the Bryan Home Guards. Admission will be free.

A BIG SUCCESS.

Election Result a Good Thing for the Tennessee Exposition.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12.—The result of the national election, which insures a safe governmental financial policy, has restored confidence in this section and brought evidence of renewed business activity. The Tennessee Centennial Exposition is now as assured success, and no such enterprise ever had better and more encouraging prospects. The work of erecting buildings and beautifying the grounds has gone on steadily, despite the excitement of the political campaign, and visitors from other states are amazed at the extent and scope of the enterprise and splendid appearance of the great buildings. The enterprise has steered clear of debt, and will be pushed forward with redoubled energy and increased expenditure to make it the most beautiful and the completest exposition ever held in the South. There is a constant demand for space for exhibits coming from every state in the Union, and from foreign countries. The exposition will open May 1, 1897, and it is the determination of the management to avoid the mistakes of other expositions and have everything complete on opening day, so that the first visitor will enjoy a full exposition without the annoyances of unfinished work. Evidence is multiplying that this great agricultural, commercial and industrial celebration of Tennessee Centennial year will be one of the most notable and successful occasions in the new era of prosperity and business activity which is promised by the renewal of confidence and the manifest spirit of progress which is now abroad in the land.

Married in Louisville. The marriage of Mr. Jas. L. Wahl, of the city, to Miss Dora Mann, of Louisville, took place in the latter city last night.

Mr. Wahl, and bride and Mr. Allie Wahl and mother and Mr. John Oehlschlaeger arrived at 12:10 this afternoon from Louisville.

BOTH DRUNK.

Had Nothing About Their Persons But Their Loads.

"We're both (hic) sober's judge, see us?" exclaimed Robert Rothchild in Marshal Collins' office this afternoon about 2 o'clock, and at this juncture a pint bottle of whisky, partly exhausted, was removed from his pocket after strenuous remonstrance on his part.

Rothchild and his comrade, John Dempsey, are umbrella menders and were drunk on the streets with their bundle of handles, annoying a great many people. They were arrested on lower Court street by Officer Wm. Wheeler and when searched nothing of value was found on their persons. They were ordered to the lockup and as the officer started below with them Rothchild made another frantic grab for the bottle and then submitted.

ARBOR DAY.

The Schools Will Observe the Day Monday.

No Elaborate Preparations are Being Made, However.

"Arbor Day," next Monday, November 16th, will be appropriately but not elaborately observed by the Paducah public schools. In the past few years the pretty anniversary has been commemorated, but covered on a large scale.

This year the afternoon will be devoted to tree planting at each of the big school buildings. There now dot the various yards many thriving little trees that were planted on past Arbor days.

The high school yard seems to be the worst in the city, and few of the trees have flourished on account of the soil, which is largely clay. At other schools, however, few of the trees have died except at the Jefferson building, where all are dead.

Rain interfered with the outdoor exercises last year on Arbor Day, and this is one reason why no elaborate outdoor programs have been arranged.

Supt. McBroom conferred with President Lang, of the board of education, this morning and it was decided to have a proper observance of Arbor Day at all the schools.

A BAD SET.

They Had a Bad And Bloody Time of It.

And Judge Sanders Decided Who Was to Blame.

Judge Sanders tried to point out the error of his way to Will Doyle, of darksome hue, this morning in the police court.

"I used to talk to your brother this way," remarked the judge, "but he thought he knew better than I did and the result is he is now in the penitentiary for life, and came near getting hung."

Doyle grinned and displayed a gash on the left side of his cheek, which was inflicted by a hatchet in the hands of Vina Bell last night near Ninth and Court streets.

Officers Singery and Orr were called and found Doyle performing the acrobatic feat of jumping out a window, glass and shutters to the contrary notwithstanding.

May Francis Caldwell, Isadora Herring and a few others of odiferous repute seemed to be after the recalcitrant Doyle. One had a poker and one a hatchet, and according to May Francis, Doyle had a club and a knife but no time he could conveniently devote to using them.

The mystery surrounding "who hit Will Doyle" is as great as the Billy Patterson problem, as no one could be found out who saw it and Doyle himself wouldn't tell. Both Doyle and the Bell woman were fined $10 and costs.

Judge Sanders informed Doyle that if he didn't stop associating with such women sooner or later they would kill him or he would have to kill them.

Is a Papa.

The following from the Murray "Ledger" will be of interest to the many friends of Mr. Buford Guthrie, the well known drummer:

"Buford Guthrie is a novice in the selection of feathered songsters as will be seen from reading an account of a little transaction which occurred yesterday. Buford has a new baby at his house and although it is but a few days old he is continually looking out for something to please the little one. He saw a boy on the streets trying to sell what he called a 'mocking bird.' The very thing," thought Buford as he asked Ben Schroeder's advice about the matter. Ben saw that the bird was web footed and had a bill a foot long. It was a kind of marsh snipe, such as Ben had often killed while out tame turkey hunting. Ben advised him to buy it and told him it was a fine bird and a singer. Buford plunked down a silver dollar and purchasing a handsome cage carried the bird home. Imagine his surprise and consternation when his better half told him with a withering look that that thing was not a mocking bird and that he did not know a canary from a peafowl. Buford had snipe on toast for dinner and for sale a nice bird cage at a reduced price."

PADUCAH, KENTUCKY, MONDAY, NOV. 12.

Dr. A. B. Bernheim, recently of Hamburg, Germany, who accompanied to America the remains of the late Mr. Herman Weil, has been located in Paducah, and rented Dr. J. G. Brooks' old office on Fifth street, but is encountering considerable difficulty in securing a license to practice and according to the authorities will be unable to secure a license at all.

Dr. Albert Bernheim, recently of Hamburg, Germany, who accompanied to America the remains of the late Mr. Herman Weil, has been located in Paducah, and rented Dr. J. G. Brooks' old office on Fifth street, but is encountering considerable difficulty in securing a license to practice and according to the authorities will be unable to secure a license at all.

Dr. Bernheim has a German diploma, but is not recognized by the German medical authorities, and this led to a discussion of the matter at a recent meeting of the American Medical Association, and it was decided to recognize no German diploma, but to require all foreign physicians to graduate from an American school or else be examined by a board appointed by the proper authorities.

The Kentucky board of health, however, has adopted a resolution requiring all foreign physicians and surgeons to first graduate from some American medical college before practicing in this country.

Acting chairman of the county board of health, Dr. J. Q. Taylor, stated to a Star reporter this forenoon:

"The matter is this: The state board of health has adopted resolutions requiring all practitioners to present a diploma from some American college before granting them a license. Dr. Bernheim has a German diploma, but has never graduated from an American college, and consequently cannot practice here at all."

"Could he not be examined by a board of competent physicians?" Dr. Taylor was asked.

"He could secure no license on an examination of any sort," was the reply. "No doctor can practice medicine in this state without a permit from the Board of Health, and the latter will issue no permit unless the applicant presents a diploma of graduation from some American college and a certificate of good moral character. I have told the doctor that he could not practice here without complying with the requirements."

Dr. Bernheim has opened up his office, however, and seems to be confident that he will soon get his license, while others appear equally as certain that he will not. The case may yet develop into something interesting.

The doctor was never in this country before, and of course is unfamiliar with its laws as many people who have lived here all their lives. As yet he has not learned to talk English well, but has a limited vocabulary and is learning rapidly. He is a relation of the Messrs Bernheim of Louisville.

Money Drawn Out in 1893 Again Deposited in Bank.

"The panic of 1893 must be over at last," said Mr. Bishop, of the German Bank. "Saturday an old lady brought to us for deposit a package of money containing $1,900. It had on it our stamp, with the date July 18, 1893, unbroken. She had drawn it then and put it away, but after the election concluded it would be safer in the bank than elsewhere, and so returned the money in its original package."

Blows Into Paducah Again—Only to be Nabbed.

Arrested on Information That He Is Wanted in Illinois.

John Niblett, with ever recurring regularity, drifts back into Paducah as the winter begins to dawn. John came back yesterday and began selling tamales.

Last night he was arrested by Officers Singery and Orr for house-breaking. The charge is an old one committed at Metropolis about fifteen months ago.

Niblett came to Paducah last fall after a gratifying interval of absence, and was shortly afterwards "pinched" for stealing a turkey out in the West End, and selling it for thirty cents. After serving a term in jail he was released, but soon drifted back.

Information was one day received that Niblett was sent over in Illinois.

A PERSISTENT AILMENT.

Stomach Trouble in Children and Its Cause.

In children the intestinal canal is relatively of greater length than in adults, while its muscular tissue is proportionately less. For this and other reasons an unsuitable diet quickly causes irregularities of the bowels in children.

It is safe to say that whenever children suffer from constipation the food which they receive is ill-suited to their stomachs if not actually harmful to them.

Infants who are brought up artificially, on cows' milk, are peculiarly subject to constipation. The milk is often found to curd in lumpy flakes, which pass through the intestines undigested. In such cases the milk should be given in a more diluted form, with perhaps the addition of a little lime water.

Cream and butter are to be recommended on porridge and cornmeal. Oatmeal gruels should form part of the dietary of older children, who should also be encouraged to drink as much water as they crave.

When constipation is found to be persistent, the child's diet should be regulated with a view to counteracting it. For children of three years and older, bread made of unbolting flour, bread and molasses—not sirup, stewed prunes, orange juice, honey and bread, olive oil and olives, codliver oil, peaches, fresh vegetables, baked apples and gingerbread should be occasionally parts of the bill of fare.

A judicious administration of this class of foods will avoid all necessity for castor oil, rhubarb and other household remedies, which are often given to a harmful extent without the family doctor's orders or knowledge.

Abdominal massage is a useful method of overcoming the cause of constipation in infants. It should be performed three or four times a day, very gently and with a warm hand. The best time for it is while the infant is feeding, when the abdominal wall is soft and relaxed.

A little dry salt, followed by a glass of water, is often relished by a child, and is beneficial in cases of constipation.

A sufficiency of fresh air and regular exercise, when combined with a proper dietary, will rarely fail to avert the threatening evil of chronic constipation.

OCTOGONARIAN'S HORSE STORY

The Age of the Author Commands Respect for the Tale.

"This is not a fish story," the story teller remarked. "It's a horse story with a schooner attached. I heard it coming in on a train from Connecticut and as the man that told it was at least 30 years old and had no reason for telling anything except the truth at that time of life I suppose it is true. We happened to be seated together, and, after talking about one thing and another, something induced him to ask: 'Did you ever hear of horses almost capsize a schooner?' Of course I never had heard anything like that, and I replied accordingly.

"When I was a young man," he continued, "a schooner came to the town where I lived for a load of horses that had been picked up for the city. The skipper rigged up a lot of stalls on deck and at high tide the horses were driven on board. It was late in the afternoon before the last one was hauled in, and, being about feeding time, the crew opened a bundle of hay and fed the horses, first on one side and then on the other. Then the strangest thing happened. The horses were hungry and they were not long in sticking their heads into the feed. Those that had been fed first began to eat first, of course.

"In a few minutes the schooner began to roll from side to side, and the crew ran about like wild men. They didn't know what to do, and the horses kept on eating. It was this way, you see: Every time the horses on one side of the vessel had their heads down for hay the horses on the other side, as it happened, held their heads up with manching, and vice versa. The center of gravity changed every time a horse moved, and as the horses were eating quickly the upward and downward motions affected the vessel so much that we thought she would capsize. Queer, wasn't it? 'What did they do?' I was obliged to ask. 'I don't know,' the old gentleman replied. 'I had to leave then, but I heard they thought of taking away the feed.'"

Degenerate Tendencies of a Hat.

"Did you know that a derby hat left on the shelves two or three years would assume a funnier shape than a fake baseball player?" said a Lisbon street hatter a few days ago. "Well, it's so. Here is a hat. It has been on the shelf three years. Look at it. Do you suppose I have bought such a bean-pot at that? No man ever designed it. Look at the brim. It isn't wider than the back of your jack-knife. The fact is that the hats are made under pressure and heat. Left to themselves they distort along the lines of pressure. Sometimes the brim crawls up into the crown, and sometimes the crowns evaporate into the brims. I've seen an old-fashioned, flat-crowned, wide-brimmed hat so emphatically irregularly that in one year it became flatter than a pancake and so funny that it would break up a revolution."

stop. One of the things giving away some small part, in one instance the breaking of a record. Almost no criticism was passed upon this machine except the fact that persons outside the booth were enabled to determine how the voter was making his ticket by the sound of the clicking after they had become familiar with it. After the close of the polls the count was greatly facilitated, the results being ascertained more than an hour earlier than usual.

The machine used in Rochester, known as the Meyers machine, did not work so perfectly, but in some respects was more satisfactory, the results, for example, at the close of the election being announced in about twenty minutes. The fact however, that this machine failed in some manner to register a number of votes, for which the machine in charge was unable to account, was decidedly against it. When forty-six voters had used the machine it was found that but six votes had been recorded, much to the surprise of the proprietors who were unable to explain or give a reason for it. After this it appears to have registered correctly. Both machines proved very rapid in action, registering an average of between two and three votes per minute. But in the use of neither could the voter feel sure he was voting as he desired. Doubtless we shall some day have a voting machine whereon the voter will touch a button and the machine will do the rest. In this day of impatient longing on the part of the people quickly to know the results of the election, every contrivance that facilitates this without endangering accuracy will find favor with the public, and especially so if at the same time it shortens the time required in voting. Here is a good field for the inventor with a long head and a plumb line at command. It will take no small amount of money to bring to perfection an elaborate machine such as the purpose demands, but when it is done it will give the inventor a quick fortune.

The result of the election shows one thing beyond a doubt. The party leaders who compelled the adoption of a clear, ringing sound money plank in the platform were the safest advisers for the party interests as well as for the country. Cowardice and cringing duplicity never pay, even in politics.

The feeling the Americans, who favored a sound financial system, have over the result of the election is quite lucidly expressed by the language of a financier who said "We have been on the brink of the precipice, but were saved from the fall." The shiver the people felt has passed and their senses have returned. They have now turned to business in

POPOCRACY.

The campaign of 1896 leaves in the vocabulary of American politics a new word—Popocracy. That the word has come to stay is evident from the fact that immediately upon its appearance it was by common consent accepted as a most suitable name for the conglomeration of popular theories that burst upon the scene in the early part of the campaign.

Popocrat startled the American people upon his entrance into the arena, by two remarkable things. He stole the name of the party and the political platform of the Populist was an enormously fleshy old sister who was loud in her expressions of enthusiasm with which her heaving bosom was filled and was shouting "Hurrah for McKinley" at the top-most altitude of her stentorian vocal organs. It was there that George saw his chance, and stepping up to the old woman he pointed out Mr. Nance, and said: "That is our new president; that's Mr. McKinley." No sooner had he spoken than the old lady made a dive for the side of the carriage, reached in and grabbed Mr. Nance by the hand and congratulated him on his success and expressed her joy thereto. She also dilated at length on the great benefits of a gold standard currency and ran down a silver basis as a most reprehensible policy as she trudged beside the vehicle. Whether it was that Mr. Nance was embarrassed at being mistaken for so distinguished a personage or was weary of the old woman's chatter, he ran his hand in his pocket and gave her a dollar.

MANY TIMES A WITNESS.

Yet City Physician Troutman Never Succeeded in Getting Anything for It.

"I have been here nearly four years," remarked City Physician Troutman this morning at the city hall, "and have testified at every term of the circuit court, nearly every one of the county courts and an infinite number of times in the police and magistrates' courts."

"Well, what about it?" asked some one.
"Nothing," was the reply, "except that I never did receive a cent for the time and trouble I took to appear as a witness. I got paid one day and concluded that I never would testify again. I paid no attention to a summons and the next thing I knew they had me arrested on an attachment."

The doctor left at this juncture for the court house, presumably to testify again.

A few days prior to the jubilee Mr. Nance, thinking that the few gray hairs interspersed among the golden threads of his heavy mustache gave him too venerable a look, had the tonsorial artist to remove it. When he appeared at the shops Monday morning it was the general remark that he bore a striking resemblance to the pictures of his political idol, McKinley, and he did make a fair appearance as the procession wended its way along the streets under the electric lights, and amid the flashes of the many colored pyrotechnics. At the corner of Ninth and Broadway an immense crowd of colored people were congregated to witness the parade.
